

PRODUCT LABELLING AND HANDS ON

INTRODUCTION

Label is the key feature of a prepackaged food. It identifies, describes and PROMOTES a product. Designing a product label is always a challenge. A bad label turns customer away while good label increase consumer interest in a product and may boost sales. However, there are rules on food product label meant for sale in Malaysia. Manufacturer, repacker, importer, retailer or any individual involves at any stage along the food supply chain is responsible to assure compliance status with the labelling requirement as stipulated in the Food Regulations 1985 (FRM 1985).

GET TO KNOW THE:

- Mandatory and Optional requirements set down in the FRM 1985.
- Guidelines that support the regulations e.g.; food additive, hypersensitivity, GMF, allergen, nutrition claims.
- The DO's and the DON'T's.

OBJECTIVE

- To provide insight information and hands on training on the key aspects of food product labelling according to FRM 1985.
- To facilitate manufacturer in marketing food product with valid information.
- To prevent false or inaccurate concept of food product labelling.
- To recognize compliant and non-compliant labels
